CONSOLATION.

BY ANTONIO.

Sad, and desolate, and opprest—
Careless of the morrow;
What can give to sadness rest?
And a balm to sorrow?
Friends—can they bestow who need?
Hope—'tis vain—a broken reed;
And false joys with lightning speed
Dim the hues they borrow.

Think that for that life of thine
Priceless blood hath started;
Think, for thee, that Power Divine
From his throne departed.
To the holiest, purest, best,
Make with faith thy sure request,
And with renovated breast,
Rise, thou broken hearted!

Think that these, and more than these,
Were but given to bless thee;
Let each quickly passing breeze
In its flight caress thee—
Read the import of its sigh,
And the signs on wave and sky,
Of a Parent ever nigh,
And let peace possess thee.

PREMATURE BURIALS.

THE DANGER AND HORROR OF BEING BURIED ALIVE.

In the last number of the Eclectic Magazine, Dr Alexander Wilder writes as follows about the peril of premature burial:

We remember vividly the horror produced, while yet in our boyhood, when an elder sister read from the Utica Observer a story entitled "Buried Alive." The person had fallen into a cataleptic condition, becoming cold and rigid while yet conscious, and was duly coffined and buried. He was exhumed by "resurrectionists," carried to a medical college, and placed on the table of the demonstrator of anatomy; a few shocks of the galvanic battery partially aroused him, and on the wounding of his breast by the knife he gave signs of life, and by proper treatment was fully resuscitated. Ten or twelve years afterwards a relative, where we were visiting, told us of having been present when the body of her son-in-law was made ready for the coffin, and perceiving, as she imagined, a warm spot on the left breast, a daughter who was sitting by as this was told cried out with horror, "Do not talk any more of it; the idea is too dreadful to think of." But we did think over and over again of the horror of interring a living person. It was hardly probable in the case in question, that such a thing did occur, for the body remained unburied long enough to allow a return to consciousness. But in this country the peril of interment, before death has actually taken place, is often very great. For years past it has been very common for persons in supposed health to fall down suddenly, with every appearance of having died. We do not regard sudden death with horror as it is often painless, and exempts the person from the anxiety and other unpleasant experiences which so often accompany a lingering dissolution.

But there is fearful liability of being prostrated by catalepsy—the counterfeit of death—under such circumstances that the persons having the body in charge will not hesitate about a prompt burial. We could wish that the old Oriental practice of cremation was in fashion among us. There would be at least the comfortable reflection of no suffocation in a coffin; besides, the application of the fire would generally arouse the cataleptic person to manifestation of life. Some two years ago a story was copied into the Rochester Democrat, purporting to be the experience of a man in a low state of health, who was compelled to seek shelter in a deserted house in Illinois, where he fell asleep. He was found there in a cataleptic trance, and supposed to have died. In this condition he was removed and prepared for burial, conscious all the time of what was going on, but unable to utter a sound or make a sign of life. His condition was fortunately discovered before it was too late. The story may be a fiction, but it did not read like one. We have several times repeated the story, although it is too serious for a jest, except when regarded entirely on the ludicrous side, of a woman who, while borne to the place of interment, was aroused to consciousness by the jostling of her coffin against the walls of a house, as the bearers clumsily turned the corner. She was speedily released from her casements and conveyed home, where she lived several years longer. She fell into a decline and died; the funeral again took place and the procession set out for the grave. As it drew near the house at the corner, the husband wiped his eyes hastily, and cried out to the bearers, "Be careful as you turn the corner."

It is, however, no topic for a jest when we consider the matter from the proper point. Persons are buried alive, and have a terrible period of agony before death comes to their relief. We execrate the old Roman law which authorized the magistrates to bury alive their incontinent vestal virgins. The Tracians, after the practice of India, buried widows. Amestris of Ester Queen of Xerxes of Persia, caused fourteen living children to be interred; and, till lately, Hindoo widows were buried or burned alive at suttees. But we, in our recklessness, do as badly as they. A writer in the Nineteenth Century informs us that the public mortuorie of Paris about one in every three hundred persons supposed to be dead actually comes to life again. At that rate one hundred persons must be buried alive annually belonging to the city of New York; and here, too, not a tithe of the precautions are taken that are required in France and England.

A well authenticated case is on record of a strong man dropping away suddenly; whose grave or tomb was opened four days after, and the body found twisted around in the coffin, and a hip dislocated, the hair turned white and torn out, and the features distorted in a horrible manner. Fearful was the struggle of that man in his ghastly conflict for life with every odds against him. A young woman, also, beautiful in person, and intellect, was buried in the usual hurry, some ten years ago. The body was afterwards taken up for removal to a distant cemetery. She, too, had been engaged and worsted in her coffin in a terrible struggle for life. Her face was gashed, her hands and arms frightfully torn, her feet drawn up in a wild endeavor to extricate herself from the horrible prison, her face furrowed and lacerated by the finger nails, so desperate had been the struggle. A young man, in another city, was thus buried, and his grave opened six days afterwards. The body had been turned upon the face, the arm was bitten to the bone, and there were other evidences of the death-wrestling.

We remember that the story was told, several years ago, that Lorenzo B. Shepard, a prominent lawyer of the city of New York, who died in the apparently full vigor of life, actually recovered after interment, and that the clothes about his face were found to be saturated with his blood. We know nothing of the accuracy of the story. Bodies have been removed from old to new burying-grounds, several of them having turned over in their coffins. Perhaps this phenomenon is produced by the mechanical force of the gases which are generated by decomposition, but who knows? We have reflected much upon this subject, and not without much anxiety. There is actually little protection for any of us from this terrible peril. We exhaust our energies by overwork, excitement, too much fatigue of the brain, the use of tobacco, sedatives and anæsthetics, and by habits and practices which hasten the three sisters in the spinning of the fatal thread. Apoplexy, palsy, epilepsy, are likely to prostrate us at any moment; and catalepsy, perhaps, is not far from any one of us.—This last affection is characterized by a loss more or less of complete consciousness, with a peculiar rigidity of the muscles, causing the body and each part of it to retain the position in which it may have been at the moment of attack, or in which it may afterwards be placed. It may attack both sides of the body, one side only, or a single limb or organ. Sometimes it is preceded by signs of nervous disorder, and at times it occurs without any previous warning symptoms.

The signs of total extinction of life are not so unequivocal as many suppose. Cessation of respiration and circulation cannot afford positive evidence, for the external senses are not sufficiently accute to enable us to detect either respiration or the circulation in the smallest degree compatible with mere existence. Loss of heat is not conclusive; for life may continue and recovery take place when no preceptible vital warmth exists. It is customary in some places to cut or amputate a finger, relying on the flow or non-flow of blood to reveal the actual fact.—Perhaps vesication would be equally sure. Heat or an irritating substance could be applied to the skin—the occurring of a blister is evidence of vitality. Foubert proposed as a test to cut into one of the intercostal spaces and feel the heart with the finger. Holding the fingers before a light is said to be sure—a redness being apparent in the living subject, but none in case of death. Galvanism has been supposed to furnish a certain test. Irritability is extinguished first in the left ventricle, then in the intestines and stomach, next in the bladder, afterwards in the right ventricle, then in the œsophagus, and after that in the iris. The muscles of the trunk finally give way, the extremities and the auricles. The collapsed edge of a wound in a dead body in distinction from a gashing wound in a living one is the result of a peculiar irritability, the extinction of which is one of the surest indications of death. Flaccidity is a certain sign of death, putrefaction is unequivocal. Belladonna or the Calabar bean applied to the eye, it is said, will sensibly affect the iris if the person is living. The number of persons who have revived at the last moment, about to be consigned to the coffin, is fearfully great. The number known to have been actually buried alive is already sufficient to justify extraordinary precautions in every case. Babier collected the details of fifty-two cases of persons buried alive, of fifty-three who recovered without assistance after they were laid in their coffins, and of seventy-two falsely reported as dead. Legislation ought to be interposed in this matter.—The law should require the examination of the body by a medical man or expert before permitting interment. When a physician has been employed he should be obliged to certify to actual death, unless the unequivocal evidences of disolution has already appeared. Undertakers and others having charge of funerals should be compelled to ascertain that death has occurred before coffining the remains.—The idea of suffocation in a coffin is more terrible than of torture of the rack or burning at the stake. Carelessness cannot be innocent; even ignorance in such a matter is akin to crime. A mockery is our sorrowing, our tears are little better than hypocricy, when we neglect precautions against the terrible fate to which every one of us is liable.

JUST WHEN IT HAPPENED.

When I was a boy, I have an idea that I developed an unusual quantity of "original sin," even for a boy, which is saying a good deal. Innumerable were the practical jokes I played, the orchards and hen-roosts I robbed, the times I played truant. I piled snow on the old district school-house chimney, and smoked out scholars and teacher; I essayed to shoot a neighbor's hens, who trespassed on my own particular garden spot, and fired the ramrod of my gun through his barn instead, unwittingly pinning the old man by his coat to the side thereof. I never tried but once to "whip the schoolmaster," why, was probably because I met with an ignoble failure that time.

When I was about twelve or thirteen, there lived near us an old man who owned a little row-boat, in which he used to be continually paddling out from the shore, to catch drift-wood coming down the river. I don't remember that his boat possessed any particular advantages over any other craft thereabouts, but I do remember that we boys invariably stole his for our fishing excursions in preference to any other—probably because he flew into such a terrific passion whenever he discovered us with it.

But one day we came to grief. Running the boat on a snag, which stove a hole in her, she sank, and we narrowly escaped the traditional "watery grave." Being forced by "stern parents" to devote our pocket-money to replace the old man's boat, the circumstance was firmly impressed on our minds. After long years had passed and I had become a staid and respected father of a family, circumstances brought the old man, now almost a centenarian, to live beside me. I fondly husted all memory of my youthful escapades had vanished from his memory, as he never referred to them, and I concluded he had forgiven and forgotten. But I reckoned without my host. One evening we sat chatting round my fire, of old times—my three boys listening, open-eyed and open-eared, to our talk. A slight difference arose between us concerning the date of a certain event. The old man was positive; so was I. Suddenly he leaned forward, looking me steadily in the face:

"I can tell you just when it was, Thomas; it was just one week before you stole my boat, stove it in on a snag in the river, and come so pesky nigh being drowned. People thought 'twas a wonder you escaped, but I didn't. I allers said you'd live—live to be hanged—for you couldn't be killed no other way."

And the old fellow chuckled in the most disgusting way, while my rascally boys grinned delightedly at their dignified father's discomfiture. It is needless to add that I never differed with the old man on the subject of dates thereafter.

THE REASON WHY.—In Indiana a husband, after a spree, was led home by one of his friends, who, after poising him safely on the door steps rang the bell and retreated somewhat deviously to the other side of the street, to see if it would be answered. Promptly the "port" was "ouverted," and the fond spouse beheld him in all his toddiness. "Why Walter, is this you?" "Yes, my dear." "What in the world has kept you so?" "Been out on a little turn with the boys, my darling." "Why Walter, your'e intoxicated!" "Y-e-s, dear, I estimate that's so." "What on earth made you get so drunk? And why—oh, why do you come to me in this dreadful state?" "Because, my darling, all th'other place'r shut up!"

CHANCE FOR A GOOD WIFE.—Here is a refreshing story of a charming young lady in Montreal who has had the misfortune to lose both of her legs. Notwithstanding this melancholy abbreviation, the damsel has received over a dozen offers of marriage during the past year; and, what is more extraordinary, she refused them all, though one of her suitors was a member of Parliament. The young woman is highly accomplished; for although it would be utterly impossible for her to join in the festive dance, polka, waltz, redowa, and all that sort of thing, she speaks seven languages, and is said to "charm everybody who comes near her." For a quiet, stay-at-home spouse she would be invaluable.

A SPRINGFIELD lady left her little boy at home to amuse himself with matches, and when she returned he met her in the street crying. He said he only just made a little fire in the bureau drawer, and a lot of red-shirted men came with a great big teakettle and squirted water all over the house. They saved the cellar door.

A BEAUTIFUL LEGEND.

I.

Softly fell the touch of twilight on Judea's silent hills;
Slowly swept the peace of moonlight o'er Judea's trembling rills.

II.

In the temple's court, conversing, seven elders sat apart;
Seven grand and hoary sages, wise of head and pure of heart.

III.

"What is rest?" said Rabbi Judah, he of stern and steadfast gaze;
"Answer, ye whose toils have burthened thro' the march of many days."

IV.

"To have gained," said Rabbi Ezra, "decent wealth and goodly store Without sin, by honest labor—nothing less and nothing more."

V.

"To have found," said Rabbi Joseph, meekness in his gentle eyes,
"A foretaste of heaven's sweetness in home's blessed paradise."

VI.

"To have wealth, and power, and glory, crowned and brightened by the pride
Of uprising children's children," Rabbi Benjamin replied.

VII.

"To have won the praise of nations, to have worn the crown of fame,"
Rabbi Solomon responded, faithful to his kingly name.

VIII.

"To sit throned, the lord of millions, first and noblest in the land,"
Answered haughty Rabbi Asher, youngest of the reverend band.

IX.

"All in vain," said Rabbi Jairus, "unless faith and hope have traced
In the soul Mosaic precepts, by sin's contact uneffaced."

X.

Then uprose wise Rabbi Judah, tallest, gravest of them all;
"From the heights of fame and honor even valiant souls may fall:

XI.

"Love may fail us, virtue's sapling grow a dry and thorny rod,
If we bear not in our bosoms the unselfish love of God."

XII.

In the outer court sat playing a sad featured, fair-haired child;
His young eyes seemed wells of sorrow—they were God-like when he smiled!

XIII.

One by one he dropped the lilies, softly plucked with childish hand;
One by one he viewed the sages of that grave and hoary band.

XIV.

Step by step he neared them closer, till encircled by the seven,
Thus he said, in tones untrembling, with a smile that breathed of heaven:

XV.

"Nay, nay, fathers! Only he, within the measure of whose breast
Dwells the human love with God love, can have found life's truest rest;

XVI.

"For where one is not, the other must grow stagnant at its spring,
Changing good deeds into phantoms—an unmeaning, soulless thing.

XVII.

"Whoso holds this precept truly owns a jewel brighter far
Than the joys of home and children—than wealth, fame, and glory are

XVIII.

"Fairer than old age thrice honored, far above tradition's law,
Pure as any radiant vision ever ancient prophet saw.

XIX.

"Only he, within the measure—faith apportioned—of whose breast
Throbs his brother love with God love, knows the depth of perfect rest."

XX.

Wondering gazed they at each other once in silence, and no more:
"He has spoken words of wisdom no man ever spake before!"

XXI.

Calmly passing from their presence to the fountain's rippling song,
Stooped he to uplift the lilies strewn the scattered sprays among.

XXII.

Faintly stole the sounds of evening through the massive outer door;
Whitely lay the peace of moonlight on the temple's marble floor,

Where the elders lingered, silent since He spake, the Undefiled—
Where the Wisdom of the Ages sat amid the flowers—a child!

A LOT OF PUZZLES.

"Two brothers," began the Professor, impressively, addressing the hostess, "were walking together down the street, and one of them stopped at a certain house, knocked at the door, observing, 'I have a niece here who is ill.' 'Thank heaven,' observed the other, 'I have got no niece,' and he walked away. Now, how could that be?"

"Why, it's a riddle!" exclaimed Mr. Funnidog, delightedly.

"And one that you will not guess in a hurry, simple as it is," observed the Professor, confidently. "Come, ladies and gentlemen, solve the problem."

"I see——" ejaculated Mrs. Housewife.

"Hush! whisper in my ear," cried Puzzleton, with all the excitement of a child with a top. "Don't let 'em hear it. Niece by marriage. Stuff and nonsence. The thing is not any foolish kind of catch at all; and once more he glanced with hostility at Funnidog, as much as to say, "Such as he would ask you." "Nothing can be simpler than my question. 'I've got a niece that's ill,' says one brother. 'Thank heaven, I have got no niece,' says the other. How can that be? You all give it up? Well, the invalid was his daughter."

"Oh, I see," said Mrs Housewife, despondingly. "How very stupid in us not to find it out."

"Yes, indeed, ma'am," answered the remorseless savant. "That failure only shows how difficult it is for ordinary minds to grasp more than one idea at the same time. The attention is solely fixed on the different varieties of nieces."

"And also," observed Mr. Aloes (who was much displeased at being classed among "ordinary minds"), "and also, the attention is naturally distracted from the point at issue by the brutality of the father's remark. Now, that is in itself 'a catch,' in my opinion."

"Well, sir, I will give you another simple exercise for the understanding that has no such distracting elements, observed the Professor, coolly "A blind beggar had a brother. The brother died. What relation were they to one another? Come, tell me that."

"Why, they were brothers," exclaimed the Colonel, with the rapidity of a small boy at the bottom of his class who hopes to gain promotion.

"No, sir," answered the Professor regarding Tunderbomb with interest as a significant type of some low order of intelligence, "they are not brothers, or I should scarcely have asked the question."

"They might be brothers-in-law," suggested Funnidog.

"Undoubtedly they might," replied Puzzleton, with a pitying smile; "but they were not."

"Stop a bit," said McPherson, hurriedly, like one who has not got his answer quite ready, but yet doesn't wish to be anticipated. "The blind beggar, you say, had a brother, and the brother died.—Well, of course, if one was dead, you know they could not be brothers any longer."

"The idea is novel," observed the Professor gravely; but you have not hit upon the exact solution. The fact is, gentlemen and ladies, a blind beggar may be either male or female. In this instance she was a female. They were brother and sister.

"I call that a catch, said Aloes, gloomily.

"Well, at all events, it is an easy one, and you all missed it," returned the Professor with quiet triumph. "Now I will give you one more example of social arithmetic, which will be in all respects bona fide. It is a simple question in subtraction, and all I shall ask of you is—since two or three guesses would arrive at the truth by mere elimination—to write down the reply on paper. A man went into a cobbler's and bought a pair of boots for sixteen shillings. He put down a sovereign (twenty shillings), and the cobbler, having no change, sent to a neighboring public house, and gave it to him. Later in the day the landlord in the inn sent in to say that the sovereign was a bad one, and insisted upon the cobbler making it right; which he accordingly did. Now, how much did the cobbler lose by the whole transaction? There is no play upon words, or anything but a common sum in arithmetic."

"Why, it's the easiest thing in the world," ejaculated Housewife. "Oh, of course the cobbler lost just—"

"Be quiet, sir!" said Puzzleton, very angrily. "Write it down, will you—if can write."

"Scratch a Professor and you find a Tartar," whispered Alloes. "You had better do as he wishes."

So we all wrote down what we imagined to be the loss which the cobbler had sustained; and it is wonderful how opinions differed with such narrow limits.

The Colonel made him lose two pounds.

Mr. Aloes made him lose just a pound and the boots.

Mr. Funnidog made him lose six and thirty shillings.

Mr. McPherson made him lose sixteen shillings and the boots, minus the profit he made upon the boots (which, said the Professor, is not necessary to take into consideration.) Mr. Scale Hill, who used to investigate the bills of extortionate Swiss Landlords, sat down the loss with confidence at twelve shillings and boots.

Housewife wrote: "Why, of course he lost the boots and twenty-four shillings."

Mrs. Housewife and the ladies bit their pens, but declined to commit themselves. "They had never been taught," they said, "the Rule of Three."

"You are all wrong," said the Professor quietly, "as I expected you would be.—The way to get at the matter is to consider what is gained. The landlord, and the whole story of his changing the sovereign may be taken out of the question, since he is neither better nor worse for the transaction. The buyer of the boots gets in exchange for his bad sovereign four shillings and a pair of boots, and that is just what the cobbler loses."

"If one only had a room to one's self, and the whole day before one to do it in," sighed Mrs. Housewife, "I think I could answer any of these questions."

EBENSBURG, PA.
SATURDAY MORNING, : FEB. 25, 1871.

MAJOR GEORGE M. LAUMAN died at his residence in Reading on the 22d inst. He was a native of Dauphin county, and while he resided in Harrisburg, several years ago, was the proprietor of the Democratic Union newspaper. He was an active and prominent politician and was well known throughout the State. He was sixty years of age at the time of his death.

ALLUDING to the election contest in the Sixteenth Congressional district, the Somerset Democrat says: The testimony is now closed on both sides, as the time allotted by law for that purpose has expired. We are well satisfied with the result. The meager majority of fifteen for Mr. Meyers will be swelled to at least three hundred after the committee rejects all the illegal votes proven on both sides. This is patent to every one at all conversant with the facts. Cessna's counsel left this place gloomy and disappointed, having been forced to the conclusion that there is no hope for Cessna's success.

THE whole country has been relieved from the dreadful suspense under which it labored, in regard to the safety of the steamer Tennessee, by the news that she had arrived at San Domingo city on the 2d of February. It is not stated what caused her delay in arriving at that port, except that the want of coaling facilities detained the vessel six days at Samana, which is on the opposite side of the island. It was not expected that the Commissioners would leave San Domingo, on their return to this country, before the beginning of March. Grant's project of annexing Dominica to the United States may, therefore, be regarded as virtually defeated, so far as the present Congress is concerned. What may take place in the next Congress, which will meet on the 4th of March, in reference to this visionary and corrupt scheme, remains yet to be developed.

THE National Assembly of France has appointed M. Thiers Provisional President, or head of the Executive Department of the government. He has announced the names of the members of his cabinet, all of whom have entered upon the discharge of the duties of their new positions. The new government has been officially recognized by England, Austria and Italy. The other leading European powers will doubtless pursue the same course. M. Thiers is an Orleanist, and from that circumstance it is predicted that the Count of Paris, son of the Duke of Orleans, who was the eldest son of Louis Phillipe, will be elevated to the throne. It seems to be conceded that a definite treaty of peace will be made by the new government with Prussia. In that event an election, based upon universal suffrage, will be held at an early day throughout France for the choosing of a King. There is not the least chance for the establishment of a Republic. It would seem, from the tenor of the latest news from that country, that the Count of Paris is most likely to prove the successful candidate. He served for a short time, with his cousin, on the staff of Gen. McClellan, when that officer took command of the Army of the Potomac, and enjoyed Gen. McClellan's entire confidence as a cultivated and a high toned gentleman. He is about thirty-four years of age.

ON the 23d of last November the Secretary of the Commonwealth directed the Commissioners of the several Counties in the State "to have made and return to the Governor an enumeration of the taxable inhabitants of their respective counties." This was done in view of the apportionment bill.—The Assessors of this county made the enumeration, at the instance of the County Commissioners, and they (the Commissioners) made a report to the Governor, stating the number of taxables in this county at 7,652. Since that imperfect enumeration was made, the Commissioners have received the regular assessment lists from all the districts in the county, all of which were made after the enumeration referred to and by the same officers. It appears from these last and more correct assessments, and on comparing them with the first enumeration, that the true number of taxables in Cambria county is 8,657, or about 100 more than is required to entitle her to a separate member. The County Commissioners have prepared two tabular statements showing this to be the fact, one of which will be sent to the Governor and the other to Mr. Rose, who will have it referred to the apportionment Committee for their action.

OUR patriotic Legislature adjourned on yesterday week, the Senate to meet again on last Thursday and the House on next Monday. The object of this most singular proceeding was to enable the members to visit Washington city and witness the "carnival," as it was called, which was held in that modern Sodom the early part of the present week, to celebrate the laying down of the Nicholson pavement on Pennsylvania Avenue. Other cities have caused to be laid down miles of the same description of pavement, and yet there was no monkey show in honor of the achievement. The question is, what business had the members of the Legislature of this State to desert their posts of duty for more than an entire week, at least so far as the House was concerned, for the senseless purpose of witnessing a few hundred fools, disguised as masqueraders, disport themselves in their grotesque costumes along the most fashionable street in the city of magnificent distances? In this silly performance consisted the principal feature of the "Carnival." The members of the present Legislature were sent to Harrisburg to enact laws for the best interests of the people, and not to attend "carnivals," either at Washington or elsewhere. Their unseemly adjournment for this childish purpose is an outrage and a gross insult to their constituents, and will necessarily have the dreaded effect of prolonging the session beyond all reasonable limits. We would like to see a list of the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn over. But we presume that the members took good care that they should not be called, and they will therefore never be published.

The District Court Abolished.

On yesterday week Gov. Geary vetoed the bill known as the Supplement to the act establishing the District Court of Cambria county. The Veto Message will be found below. It will be seen from the last paragraph of the message that the Governor earnestly recommends the repeal by the Legislature of the original law establishing the District Court, which was passed on the 13th of April, 1869. This is conclusive evidence that he will not appoint any Judges to hold that Court. The Court is therefore absolutely abolished, and all judicial proceedings in this county must hereafter be commenced at Ebensburg.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Feb. 17, 1871.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN—After a most careful consideration of the subject, I find myself unable to approve House bill No. 9, entitled "A supplement to the act entitled An act to establish an additional court in Cambria county, approved the 13th day of April, A. D. 1869."

The act of 13th April, 1869, to which this is a supplement, created a court of record called the district court of Cambria county, with the jurisdiction of a court of quarter sessions, and of a court of common pleas, and jurisdiction to extend over the boroughs of Johnstown, Conemaugh, Millville, Cambria, Prospect, Franklin and East Conemaugh, and the townships of Yoder, Richland, Taylor and Conemaugh, and the courts to be held by the president judge of the district and the associate judges of Cambria county. The supplement declares that said courts of common pleas and quarter sessions of the county of Cambria, at Johnstown, for the weeks commencing on the first Mondays of April, July, October and January, in every year, and shall exercise all the usual powers and jurisdiction of such courts over said boroughs and townships; and further, that the judges, prothonotary, clerks of the quarter sessions, the sheriff and district attorney of Cambria county, shall attend the sessions of said courts at Johnstown, and there exercise and perform their respective duties.

The act of 13th April, 1869, so far as it undertook to establish an independent court in certain portions of Cambria county, to be presided over by the judges of the courts of common pleas and quarter sessions of the county, has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the State, in an opinion delivered at Philadelphia, on the 9th inst., and the Hon. George Taylor, by the decree of said court, was ousted "from all further exercise of the powers and immunities pertaining to the office of president judge of the district court of Cambria county."

The learned opinion of Chief Justice Thompson in the quo warranto case of the Commonwealth vs. Conyngham, states the reasons for this judgment so clearly and fully, I deem it unnecessary to say or do more on this point than to refer to that opinion, a copy of which is hereto attached, marked A; and to the more recent opinion of the same court in the case of the Commonwealth vs. George Taylor, upon a like proceeding to test the validity of the act of 13th April, 1869, a copy of which opinion is also hereto attached, marked B.

The sixteenth section of the original act provides additional salaries for the several judges of the new court; and the supplement retains this feature of the law. The latter clause of the second section of the fifth article of the Constitution declares that president judges of the courts of common pleas shall not "hold any other office of profit under this Commonwealth;" and the Conyngham and Taylor cases decide this office and salary to be within the prohibition.

The sixth article of the Constitution provides that sheriffs, prothonotaries and clerks of the several courts shall be elected by the qualified voters of each county, and that they "shall keep their offices in the county town of the county in which they respectively shall be officers." How, then, can the Legislature, by the act under consideration, or any other, require these officers to exercise and perform their official duties at any other place than the county seat? And how can these county officers appoint deputies, as provided by the tenth and twelfth sections of the original act, in the face of the constitutional requirements that the sheriffs and clerks of courts shall be elected?

Both the original and supplemental acts must be considered together in order to fully comprehend the important subject, especially as the lost section of the supplement virtually re-enacts nearly all the original law. On the whole, under the opinions of the Supreme Court, and for the reason stated, I cannot but consider this legislation, in all its essential features, unconstitutional and void, and I therefore return the supplement to the House, in which it originated, without my approval; and I also earnestly recommend the repeal of the original act of 13th April, 1869, believing that the sooner this experiment is abandoned, and we get back to the beaten path prescribed by the Constitution, the better it will be for all concerned.

JNO. W. GEARY.

A PORTION of the public press of this progressive country, and especially the Pittsburgh Commercial, has been terribly exercised during the last two weeks, over a statement that the Rev. THOMAS FARRELL, Catholic priest of St. Joseph's church, Sixth Avenue, New York, had been removed by Archbishop MCCLOSKEY, in consequence of the liberal views entertained by Father FARRELL on the question of Italian independence. How much truth there was in this idle story we will let Father FARRELL himself testify. In his sermon last Sunday, referring to the rumor of his removal, he spoke as follows:

As rumors have recently been circulated to the effect that I had been removed from the pastorship of this church because of certain acts and utterances of mine, especially of recent date, I feel it to be proper to inform you that I am not removed, and that I am not to be removed. At the same time I desire to say that it would grieve me exceedingly, no matter what may be my opinions in matters where Catholic faith leaves us free, that any one should interpret any word or act of mine in a sense contradictory to the teaching of the Church of God, which has had my love and allegiance. From childhood I have dedicated my whole life to the study of Catholic truth, and it has been my happiness for so many years to preach to you that truth. And now I desire to declare above all things that I am a loving and loyal son of the Church of Christ, and that in no one will you find a more sincere adhesion to the doctrinal decisions of the church, whether promulgated through her general councils or by the Holy See. Instead of being cast down by the unpleasantness caused by these rumors, I desire, my dear people to take occasion from it to dedicate myself with renewed energy to your spiritual welfare, and to impress more earnestly upon your minds and hearts the teaching and practice of our holy religion. And now whilst thanking sincerely the press of the country for the kind and respectful manner in which it has always spoken of me, and in which it has lately alluded to me, I must express to you, my people, and to my fellow-citizens of all denominations, my profound esteem for the general warm and substantial sympathy manifested towards me during these painful rumors. In conclusion, I will say that I have loved my religion better than my life, and that I have loved liberty with a very ardent love. Our religion does not forbid it but rather sanctifies it. There is no incompatibility between religion and true liberty, any more than there is between religion and true science. A man may adore devoutly before the altar of God and worship enthusiastically before the shrine of liberty. Whilst loving my religion more than life, I will ever under the guidance of that religion hate tyranny, oppression, injustice, and wrong, and give my sympathy and assistance to the oppressed, the afflicted and wronged, the world over.

These remarks were listened to most attentively, and made a profound impression on the congregation.

Letter from California.

From a private letter received more than a week ago from a Cambria county friend and a brother typo—one of our earliest pupils—we take the liberty of making the following excerpts, believing they will prove not without interest to many readers:

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Jan. 31, 1871.

MY DEAR HENRY— * * * * * * * *
Since my last letter to you I have had a nice little combat with the typhoid fever, which, by the way, came uncomfortably near coming out "first best." In fact, I was given up by my physician as a "gone in community." But, thanks to an excellent constitution and such care as one can get only at home, I weathered the storm. It lasted me in all about four months. What added to the uncomfortableness of the situation was, that my wife had the intermittent fever, at the same time. When we recovered from that, we undertook to run the chills and fever a trip, and haven't got through with the contract yet.

The indications are, that we are going to have a "dry winter" this year, as but very little rain has yet fallen, and the end of the rainy season is near at hand. If that shall prove to be the case, the bottom has "drapped" out of this portion of "the finest country in the world," for two or three years to come, sure. If I could sell our "ranche" and house for anything near what it is worth, Los Angeles county would "know me no more again forever." I would immediately skeedaddle for Sacramento, and "the shirt tail of thy servant would be seen fluttering in the breezes" that sweep the LLANOS (yanos-plains) between here and Wilmington as he struck a bee line for the steamer. By the way, the opposition steamer has created quite a furore in this city of "Angels"—When we came down, the fare was $22.50, and now it is only $5 in the cabin and $2 in the steerage—"grub" thrown in. How is that for 490 miles of ocean travel? It is just about as cheap as boarding in a decent hotel in San Francisco, as it requires two days to make the trip. I hope the opposition will not allow themselves to be bought off.

Although, as a general thing, we are a law-abiding community here, we have now a regularly organized Vigilance Committee. So many criminals have been cleared here within the past year, through the sheer ignorance of juries, and their incapacity for that duty, that it at last became absolutely necessary for respectable citizens to protect themselves. The first act of the Vigilantes was to form in military order, about 300 strong, all fully armed, and march to the jail in which was confined a man named Miguel Sachenaie, who had a few days previously shot and killed a Mr. Jacob Bell, a Pennsylvanian; break in the door, put a rope around the prisoners neck, and lead him to a coral in the back part of town, where they very quickly finished his career. He was under suspicion of having murdered several other persons in his time. They have not alone declared war against the criminals, but also against the judges and juries who allow them to escape through some loophole of the law. It has had one good effect, however—stopping the indiscriminate use of the six-shooter and bowie knife.

I see by a dispatch that Hon John Covode died in Harrisburg, a short time ago, of disease of the heart. Since my earliest recollection of such matters, he has been intimately connected with the politics of Pennsylvania—sometimes advocating good measures, sometimes very questionable ones. But the grave, like charity, covereth a multitude of sins—especially those of a political complexion.

I am happy to see that the old Keystone State has begun in earnest to throw off the thraldom of Republican rule under which she has groaned for the past few years. Experience is a good teacher; but wisdom may be bought too dearly; and I'm afraid that if the "God and morality" party retain the reins a few years longer, the people of Pennsylvania will find this to be a very sad truism.

Everything goes to show that we will have a warm contest in this State at the next general election. Had the last been any closer than it was, it would have been uncomfortably close. Thus far, I have heard of only fourteen candidates on our side for Governor. It is really surprising to find we have so many public-spirited men who are willing to sacrifice themselves for the good of the "dear people" Of course to them the emoluments are nothing—oh, no, "not by no means."

The FREEMAN of the 12th inst came duly to hand this morning; and to say that I was surprised on reading Governor Geary's Message, would not do the feeling justice. I had an idea that that battle-SCARED" hero was excruciatingly "loil;" but this message knocks wind out of that fallacy. The rebuke he administered to Government Grant on Military interference with elections, was well merited, I think.

By the way, John W., in early days, figured to a considerable extent in California politics. In 1849: he and four others ran for Governor, and he received 1,213 votes, while the others had from 4,300 to 6,900—Burnet being the successful candidate. After being defeated, Geary ran for the United States Senate, and was triumphantly elected to stay at home.

FORTY DAYS FAST.—The bishops of the various Catholic dioceses have issued pastoral instructions for the penitential observance of the holy season of Lent. They are generally alike with a few unimportant exceptions. The publication of the rules denote the hierarchical authority, while the obedience of the congregations gives evidence of the universality of that powerful bond, the unity of faith, which links the Catholics of the world to the clergy and binds them to the altar in every clime.

Ash Wednesday inaugurates the lenten season, which extends to Easter. Lent is said to have been instituted by pope Telesphorus, 130. The early christians did not commence their Lent until Sunday, which is now called the first Sunday in Lent, and the four days beginning with Ash Wednesday were added by Pope Felix III in the year 487, in order that the number of fasting days should amount to forty. Lent was first observed in England by command of Ercombert, king of Kent, in 640 or 641. The eating of meat was prohibited during Lent, but Henry VIII permitted the use of white meats by a proclamation in 1243, which continued in force until, by proclamation of James I in 1619 and 1625, and by Charles I in 1627 and 1631, flesh was again wholly forbidden.

INFORMATION WANTED.—A young man named William Thompson, late of Wales, suddenly became insane and left his home at Raymilton, Venango county, Pa., some time in August, 1870. He is about five feet five inches in height, of slender build, spare face, light complexion, light brown hair, and about 25 years old. Before his disappearance he was the only supporter of the aged woman who raised him. The last seen of him was at Sandy Lake, where he was preaching in the street. Any information as to his whereabouts will be thankfully received by his anxious friends. Address J. J. Barnes, Raymilton, Venango county, Pa. Our exchanges will confer a favor on the young man's friends by publishing this notice.—Venango Spectator.

A REMARKABLE MIRACLE.—We clip the following from a recent number of the Philadelphia Inquirer:

A really wonderful incident has lately occurred at Soriano, in Calabria, or to speak more correctly, it occurred some little time ago, and has only just been made public.—A full account of it will be found in a circular letter by the Very Rev. Father A. Vincent Jandel, General of the Dominican Order, addressed from Rome to all the provincials of his order, and quoted in the Tablet of last week. There is at Soriano a celebrated sanctuary of St. Dominic, and in the church an ancient image of that saint, the size of life, carved in wood, and held in high veneration both for the origin attributed to it and the graces so frequently obtained for its votaries. It seems that the 15th of September last, which was its feast, thirty persons who had remained in the church to pray before this old image suddenly perceived it to move as if alive. The image came forward and then retreated, raised and lowered its right arm alternately, contracted its brow, accompanying this expression with gestures, now of indignation, now of grief, as it looked at the persons present, turning occasionally toward the image of the Virgin of the Holy Rosary, when its countenance would assume a sweet and reverential aspect; in short, demeaning itself as preachers are wont to do when addressing a congregation. St. Dominic himself was preaching once more on earth in his image. "What were the feelings of the beholders, says the Tablet, "may be imagined." The good people of Soriano first looked at each other, then at the image, and the cry of "St. Dominic! St. Dominic! a miracle! a miracle!" burst from every lip. The wonderful news spread like lightning through the town. Everybody left their occupation to crowd the sanctuary; and soon no less than 2000 persons had the pleasure of witnessing the image's performances, which lasted about an hour and a half, amid the prayers, tears and acclamations of the people, who afterwards carried the image around the town in procession. Father Jandel accounts for the delay that has occurred in publishing this marvelous occurrence by stating that it was necessary first to obtain the authority of the bishop of the diocese, which is that of Mileto. This has now been received, and further concealment is no longer necessary. Thirty "intelligent and respectable eye witnesses" have sworn to the truth of the story, and a large number more are prepared to swear also to the same effect if required to do so.

THE HEROIC ENGINEER.—David Simmons was the engineer of the Pacific express train. He was a true man. For twenty years he held a place on an engine. Years ago, while dashing past Yonkers, Simmons called the attention, of fireman to a train that was sweeping down upon them like the wind.—A collision seemed inevitable. The frightened fireman shouted, "Good-bye, Doc; I'm going to jump, and sprang from the locomotive. Simmons stood with his hand upon the throttle of his engine like a man of iron. In the face of startling peril he remembered his duty, and stood at his post. A collision was averted, and the heroic engineer saved the lives of a hundred men.

On Monday night David Simmons was driving his engine toward Albany at the rate of forty miles an hour. Near New Hamburg a red light was swung out as from an approaching train. The engineer saw it.—It was the signal of danger. David Simmons whistled down brakes in the vain hope of stopping the express in time. His fireman again took the alarm, and shouted to Simmons to leap for life. The noble Simmons calmly answered, "I won't; I'll stay with my engine." Again he stood like a man of iron at his post. The fireman sprang and saved his life. The engineer saw a train on the bridge. He realized that his only hope of safety was to dash through the obstruction. He whistled off the brakes, and crowded on all of his steam. This was the work of an instant. Simmons peered into the darkness, shading his eyes with his hand, and was dashed into the jaws of death.

David Simmons was a hero. His fate is sad; but his noble behavior is the only bright page in the dark history of the awful accident at New Hamburg.—N. Y. Sun.

THE DEATH OF GEN. MAGRUDER.—Gen. John B. Gagruder died in Houston, Texas, on Sunday forenoon. He was born in Virginia, and on July 1, 1826, was appointed a cadet at West Point from that State. He graduated July 1, 1830, and entered the army as Second Lieutenant in the Seventh Infantry. His first service was in garrison at Fortress Monroe, in the artillery school for practice, and in August, 1831, was transferred to the First Artillery. On March, 21, 1836, he was made First Lieutenant of artillery. His first active service was in the Florida war in 1837-8. He was also engaged in all the principal battles of the Mexican war, in which he was three times promoted for gallant and meritorious conduct. At the breaking out of the rebellion, Magruder, then Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel of artillery, was in garrison at Washington. He resigned his commission April 20, 1861, and entered the Confederate army as colonel, but was soon made Brigadier General. His principal achievements in the rebellion was the defeating of Gen. Butler's forces at Big Bethel, the burning of Hampton, Va., and the recapture of Galveston, Texas, with the steamer Harriet Lane.

—Willian Newman, of Fairfax county, Va., was seriously, if not fatally, shot by his dog on Thursday week. Mr. N. was out hunting, and having discharged one barrel of his gun, had the trigger to the remaining charged barrel set against his person, when his dog, playfully leaping up, touched the hammer, causing the discharge of the other barrel, the charge entering under the left nipple, larcerating the flesh and passing up entering the left jaw, fracturing the skull, but leaving the brain untouched. His situation is critical.

—Alice Cary, the gifted Western poetess, died at her residence in East Twentieth street, New York, last week, at the age of 50. She was the daughter of Robert Cary, a plain, substantial old farmer of Hamilton county, Ohio, who died only so late as Feb. 12, 1866, the same day of the year as that upon which his gifted daughter had taken her departure. Alice was a promising poetess at 18, but was known only by her little fugitive pieces which she flung here and there into out of the way corners of country newspapers.

—A little daughter of Mr. F. O. Rogers, residing at Hyde Park, Mass., died last week, aged six years, from rather a curious cause. A few months ago she swallowed a cut glass button, and soon after was taken quite sick. Doctors from that town and Boston was called in, but though they succeeded in giving her temporary relief, she kept gradually failing, and finally died. A post mortem examination showed that her death was from chronic irritation of the intestines, caused by the glass button which she had swallowed.

THE verdict of the jury on the New Hamburg disaster is that no one was to blame.

—An Ohio youth, aged twenty-four eloped recently with his step-mother, aged forty-two. The old gentleman took his wife home in the cars and left his son to follow along on foot.

—A Mrs. Youngman, of Iowa, has become heiress of property in Scotland worth $2,500,000. It is difficult to say whether she or her husband is the happier young men of the two.

—A most terrible storm of lightning and rain occurred in San Francisco on Monday. Several persons were injured and four killed by the falling of a wall. No such thunder has ever been experienced in California.

—John Balthas Knap, who, served eleven years in the campaigns of the first Napoleon, died in Montgomery county a few days ago, at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. He was a native of Wurtemburg, Germany.

—The upper crust of Washington colored society is in ferment over the approaching marriage of an ebon-hued physician with a lady of pure Caucasian blood, who holds a prominent position in the freedman's bureau.

—Mrs. Doolittle, of North Haven, Conn., widow of the late Edward J. Doolittle, while making preparations for the funeral of her husband, said in one week she would be dead also. Her words proved true, and she lies now by the side of her husband in the Episcopal cemetery.

—Among the applicants for lodging at the East Twenty-third street Police Station, New York, on Sunday night, was Sam O'Reilly, a colored man, who was born in Cork, Ireland. Mr. O'Reilly has never been naturalized, but is a strong Fenian sympathizer, and a great admirer of Gen. Thos. F. Burke.

—A fellow convicted in the Clarion County Court last week of two charges of violating the law in regard to the sale of liquor, blandly requested the Judge to suspend sentence for a few days until he could get married, as he feared his "girl" wouldn't have him after he had been in jail. His request was granted.

—A hurricane on Friday night, destroyed or demolished most of the buildings at Helena, Arkansas, and inflicted severe damage on Pocahontas and Iuka, Miss. At Helena, a widow named Stewart was fatally injured and her little son was instantly killed. The loss at Helena is estimated at $75,000 to $100,000.

—The Know Nothing element is still strong in the radical party. Only the other day a proposition was voted down in the loyal legislature of Rhode Island, to allow naturalized foreigners to vote without a property qualification. A poor foreigner cannot vote in Radical Rhode Island, though the poor negro can.

—On Sunday afternoon Rev. John Chambers, who for forty years has been pastor of the Independent Church, Philadelphia, was taken suddenly ill in the pulpit, and had to be removed to his residence, where medical aid was secured. His illness is said to be of a paralytic nature. The congregation was much excited and afflicted by the event.

—Several weeks since a five-year old son of Mr. Black, of Havana, Ill., got a grain of popcorn in his windpipe. A physician was called in, who professed to have removed the obstacle. But last Monday, while playing with the babe, the little fellow ran to his mother and said, "Mother; kiss me; I'm going to die." In three minutes the child was a corpse.

—The citizens of Carlisle, Pa., are indignant at President Grant, for ordering the breaking up of the military post there and transfer of the recruits to Jefferson barracks, Missouri. The payments to soldiers quartered there amounted to twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars per month, most of which sum was usually spent there. Consequently this change will be a great loss to the town.

SATURDAY, : : : FEB. 25, 1871.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Haps and Mishaps at and near Home.

—Messrs. Swaney & Feighner, of Carrolltown, propose to make pumps, bore for water, &c. See their advertisement.

—Paul Smith, of Huntingdon, fell down stairs in a hotel at Petersburg on Thursday week and injured himself very badly.

—Conemaugh Furnace has once more been put in blast, and is now said to be turning out about one hundred tons of iron per week.

—The Cherry Tree boasts of a hunter who killed six deer this winter and five last winter, to say nothing of smaller game in abundance.

—The erection of a new county out of parts of Bedford, Huntingdon and Fulton, with Broad Top City as the county seat, is talked of.

—David Weaver was badly injured, one day last week, by a falling stone at Funk's lime kiln, Duncansville, striking him on the back.

—We regret to learn of the continued and very serious illness of Rev E. A Bush, of Loretto, who was reported much worse on Friday.

—Indiana county has to borrow judges to hold her courts. Judge Campbell of the Jefferson district has been borrowed for the next term.

—Cambria's representative, Hon. W. H. Sechler, accompanied by his amiable lady, spent Wednesday last in our town. Always welcome.

—A young man named Laird was run over by a team at Mifflintown on Monday afternoon and so severely crushed that he died in fifteen minutes.

—John Dassler, aged 17, fell through a hatchway in the Huntingdon Furnace Mill, a distance of over forty feet, on Monday week, and was instantly killed.

—A steam sawmill and a dwelling house, with all its contents, have been destroyed in Indiana county at different times within the past week or two.

—The weather is mild and spring like, and the indications are that March will come in like a lamb. If so, look out for some "lyin'" about the latter part of it.

—Mr. R. H. Tudor offers for sale his store room on High street—one of the most commodious and best located in the town. See advertisement elsewhere.

—Four persons were thrown out of a one horse sleigh near Richmond, Indiana county, on Sunday last and one of them, a Mrs. Brady, had her collar bone broken.

—A Mr. Neil, of Dublin township, Fulton county, got up about one o'clock Monday morning and complained of being unwell. In an hour afterwards he was a corpse.

—A Blairsville lad named Miller had one finger taken off and two others badly twisted, on the 15th inst., by the bursting of a gun which he was attempting to fire a wad.

—If we were given to lying we would say that somebody sent us that typographical valentine, but not being inclined that way, our Patron will please accept thanks. Come again.

—The Ebensburg correspondent of the Altoona Echo learns that a serious stabbing affray took place in the vicinity of Loretto this week. We don't know anything more about it. [illegible]

—That unfounded "squirt" hasn't arrived [illegible] gentleman from whom it was purchased, which is some consolation. The [illegible] was really shipped from New York [illegible]

—Dr. Evelyn O. Porter, assistant editor of the Bedford County Press, died of consumption on the 7th inst., aged 30 years. He was [illegible] having been educated for an [illegible] minister.

—Rev. S. M. Kerr, pastor of the Presbyterian congregation in this place, is said to have received a call from New Castle, Pa., but we believe he has neither accepted or declined it. The salary offered is reported to be $1,800.

—We stated positively last week that we would publish our "Roll of Honor" in this issue, and now we can state just as positively that we haven't done it. "Man proposes," etc. We intend to come next time, as we will then have plenty of space.

—Our Altoona correspondent widens some [illegible] the School Board of that city this week. This being a free country, free speech is always in order, and if any one wants to write the other side of the question our columns are at his service.

—Capt. Jas. H. Gageby, of the 3d U. S. Infantry, now stationed at Fort Lyon, Colorado, is on a brief visit to his home in Johnstown.—The Captain is a tip top gentleman and a good soldier, and we wish him a pleasant sojourn among his many friends at home.

—Jesse Richison, of West Huntingdon, cut his left foot very severely with an axe a few weeks ago, and on Thursday a week finished the job by cutting an ugly gash in his right foot. On the last occasion he came very near bleeding to death. Both choppings were axe-cidental.

—An act has been passed by the Senate to prevent the killing of rabbits, having them unlawfully in possession or exposing them for sale between the 1st of January and 15th of October, with a penalty of five dollars attached for the violation of any one of the three provisions.

—The bill to incorporate a turnpike road from Ebensburg to the Cherry Tree is in the hands of the proper committee in the Senate. We trust that Gen. White will see that it passes that body, in order that it may have a sure and safe deliverance in the House, and thus become a law.

—The Continental Vocalists, of which Mr. and Mrs. Ed. M. Kerr are members, are to concertize at Johnstown on Tuesday evening next. One of the troupe, we see it stated, plays several airs on common glass tumblers and accompanies himself upon the piano at the same time. Big thing.

—Mr. John W. McKinney has severed his connection with the Altoona Sun—retiring we hope with a fortune. John is a first class typo and a ready writer, and we wish him good luck wherever he may go. Mr. D. W. Moore has the Sun all to himself now. May it shine more brilliantly than ever.

—The Bedford county Court held two sessions, forenoon and afternoon, on Sunday last—certainly a new innovation. The trial of Mrs. Charlotte Gordon for the alleged murder of her husband was in progress and occupied the attention of the Court for nine days, ending on Tuesday night in a verdict of not guilty.

—A country gentleman attending Court at Greensburg week before last, smoked his pipe before going to bed at the Laird House, and put his stuck pipe, hot ashes and all into his coat pocket. Some time during the night he was awakened by a stifling sensation and found his clothing nearly all consumed, his bed on fire and himself almost smothered to death with the smoke.

—The Cantina Brothers, a troupe composed solely of home talent, but none the less capable or worthy on that account, are to give a concert this (Saturday) evening, in aid of the Ladies' Fair, at the spacious building occupied by that enterprise. We have heard the "Brothers" in their preparatory exercises, and believe they will give a very enjoyable entertainment. Admission 25 cents, children 15.

—In a portion of our edition last week we announced that a tree that had been chopped down and had lodged against another tree, was blown from its position by the wind on Friday last and fell on Cunningham's steam saw mill, in Cambria township, very badly demoralizing the structure. None of the machinery was injured, and as no person was in the mill at the time no one was hurt. The mill is now all right again.

—At a meeting of the fire engine company, held at the Court House on Monday evening last, the following gentlemen were elected permanent officers: President, Wm. H. Sechler; Vice Prest., E. H. Plank; Secretary, A. T. [illegible]; Treasurer, Sam'l Henry; Directors, [illegible] Davis, F. H. Barker, R. J. Lloyd, Thos. [illegible] Lloyd and J. T. Hutchinson. A constitution and by-laws was also adopted, one of the provisions of which is that the engine shall be called the "Dauntless," instead of the "Victory," its present designation.

Local Correspondence.

ALTOONA CITY, Feb. 23, 1871.

FRIEND MAC—It becomes my painful duty to inform you this week of a most melancholy and fatal accident which befel an estimable young man, Orin McClelland by name, who was employed as clerk in the Pa. R. R. Yard at this place. The deceased, while attempting to cross the railroad tracks on yesterday (Wednesday) evening, was caught in some way by a passing engine and drawn under a freight train, some fifteen or twenty cars of which passed over him and mangled him in a horrible manner. He was picked up and carried home after the accident, and the best medical skill called in, but all to no purpose, for he died soon after. One of his arms and both of his legs were literally torn from his body, but notwithstanding this, he retained consciousness until death relieved him of his suffering. Mr. McC. was a promising and highly respected young man and was the idol of fond and doting parents, both of whom have the sincere sympathy of our people in their affliction. His age was somewhere between 18 and 20 years.

Local news other than the above is as scarce as efficient School Directors in this latitude.—Our own School Board, by the way, are receiving a great deal of public attention just now, and it may not be amiss to tell the reason why. It has been charged on them that they had a nicely put up job in the carrying through of which they anticipated realizing handsomely. Petitions were circulated industriously by them among the knowing few, praying the Legislature to grant them the power to borrow $100,000, ostensibly for school purposes, which bill they hoped to have passed before the people would have time to "smell a mice." But thanks to the foresight of the "Radical" newspaper of this city, the alarm was given and the people aroused, and the result was that the iniquitous scheme came to well merited grief in very short order. And just here let me say that the "Radical" has manifested a spirit of pluck and independence far above and beyond all of its contemporaries, and on this particular occasion it gave the Directors such a complete scoring that they were forced to take refuge in the protecting arms of a certain journal that has become notorious for its abject support of the powers that be under all circumstances. It need not be wondered at then that the journal in question made a labored effort to defend, or rather whitewash, the School Board, but the "Radical," again came boldly up to the work, and such a drubbing as it administered to the recreant journal for its duplicity I have not read for many a day. After doing this pretty effectually, the "Radical" went on to maintain that the School Board had acted with rather questionable honesty, to say the least, in the purchase of the ground upon which the new school building stands, in awarding the contract for the erection of said building to one of their own number, in the name of his son, at a price several hundred dollars in excess of the sum for which equally responsible and competent parties proposed to do the work, and in paying exorbitant prices for gas and water fixtures, heaters, etc. This is the bill of indictment made out by the "Radical," and if it be true, as I am informed, that many of our citizens, irrespective of party, are flocking to its support and thus endorsing the independent stand it has taken, that paper will have little trouble in "fighting it out on that line." And as for the School Board, they have only themselves to blame if their official acts have become a byword and reproach in the community.

The Altoona Tribune seems to be under the impression that every one who does not blindly acquiesce in the doings of the present Board of Directors is an opponent to our common school system. If opposing what I conceive to be fraud, corruption, bigotry, intolerance and set up jobs be opposition to the school system, then am I open to the charge, and glory in being so. T. I. M.

JOHNSTOWN, Feb 22, 1871.

DEAR FREEMAN—Our friends, instead of sliding the Ebensburg Court down on us, have slid the District Court back to Ebensburg. A sad mistake, truly, but it is too late now to cry about spilled milk.

We had a Fireman's Ball at Union Hall on last Monday night. The attendance was large and the enjoyment excellent.

A lecture was delivered in Union Hall on Saturday evening last for the purpose of raising funds to aid the Millville Mission Sabbath School to purchase books.

The parties mentioned in my last letter as having indulged in a "free fight," were brought up standing on Saturday and fined according to their several abilities.

The "trance" question has created some excitement here. I have not taken either side of the subject, but if I did it would be the "spirit" side, that being the most congenial to my tastes. Milton says, "Millions of spiritual creations walk on earth unseen, both when we wake and when we sleep."

Conemaugh borough and East Conemaugh borough are both to have new school houses.

The following touching poem is from the gifted pen and fertile brain of "Truthful Jane," eldest sister of "Truthful James," who, you know, has created considerable sensation in literary circles of late:

THE PIOUS MORMON.

The Mormon religion
Is cold and severe,
But Mormons have notions
Both novel and queer;
The same I relate,
And I am sincere.

Which to Salt Lake City
I went to teach school;
And I grieve to relate,
'Twas against the rule
For ladies out there
To swing the ferule.

But an Elder I met
Was very polite;
He gave me a supper
And lodged me that night,
Then showed me next morning
The school-house site.

About sixty young Mormons
Flocked in, and we sung;
But the roll soon disclosed
What palsied my tongue:
That is, that each name
On the roll was Young.

Which the Elder then said,
"It must be revealed,
That you can't teach school
Unless you are sealed."
To which I agreed
And—the rest is concealed.

But the words that he said
Made me quiver and faint;
For the Mormons have notions
Both pleasing and quaint;
And that's how I became A Latter-Day Saint.

One of the largest crowds that ever assembled in this place congregated along the banks of the Conemaugh river, near Woodvale, on Sunday last, to witness the immersion of eight persons in that frigid stream. The day was quite cold, but the entire number—four males and four females—submitted to the ordinance of baptism notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. We believe the rite was administered by a minister of the Regular Baptist church. The crowd present was immense, reaching from the lower bridge to the bridge above the factory. I have not heard that any personal injury resulted from the performance of the ceremony. ROB ROY.

THE NEW HAMBURG DISASTER—A CAMBRIAN AMONG THE VICTIMS.—It has been ascertained beyond a doubt that the man who was on the engine with "Doc" Simmons in the late terrible railroad disaster at New Hamburg, on the Hudson River railroad, and who of course went down with the locomotive, was none other than James Humphreys, an Ebensburger by birth and youngest brother of David and John Humphreys, who reside at Conemaugh, this county. The remains of the unfortunate man were brought to this place yesterday (Friday) and interred in Lloyd's cemetery. The deceased was well known in this county, and his sad fate will be greatly deplored.

UP TO SNUFF.—"Doctor, does snuff injure the brains?" "No sir, not any; for people who have brains don't use snuff." People, however, who purchase their ready-made clothing at James J. Murphy's Star Clothing Store, No. 169 Clinton street, Johnstown, have brains enough to know where good bargains can be had. Mr. Murphy keeps the choicest stock in the State, and is always willing to sell on the most accommodating terms without regard to profit or loss, and never looks sour at customers if they fail to buy.

MacShane on the Rampage Again.

MY DEAR FREEMAN—I have been to York—not New York, but old York, or "Little York," as the people there delight to call it.

York, it is no doubt needless to tell you, is the capital, or county seat, of York county, Pa., and is not only one of the oldest towns in the State, but is celebrated as the seat of the Continental Congress in 1777, during the occupation of Philadelphia by the British army.

I had visited York on a former occasion, (in 1861,) when our gallant soldiers from the mountain lay in their tents on York Common, south of the town. I well remember a happy re-union on that occasion at La Fayette Hall, renowned as the headquarters of Gen. WASHINGTON during a certain period of the Revolution. At that time I forgathered with a number of genial and noble spirits whose lives have since been offered up on the shrine of their country. I have in my mind's eye now the noble form and features of the gallant NOON, the chivalrous HICKS, the reckless WATERBURY, the eccentric and gifted JACKSON. All gone! Peace to their ashes!

But I digress. I would speak of York! It is a rich, healthy, improving town, and affords more of the Pennsylvania German element than any town of the same size in the State—and abounds in the characteristics of that population. It is wealthy without ostentation and thrifty without show.

York is twenty-eight miles by the Northern Central Railroad from Harrisburg. For about half this distance you follow the southern bank of the beautiful and classic, but worthless Susquehanna, when a curve to the right takes you into the bowels of York county, and so on to her seat of justice.

From the moment you leave the Susquehanna you feel yourself in a different atmosphere. You realize at once that you have passed from the progressive to the conservative—from the Yankee to the Teutonic element. As you approach York everything intensifies this idea—You even see evidences of it in the cars. The conductor is more corpulent, the passengers ticketed to York, of both sexes, are heavier and happier looking than the others. The very whistle of the engine seems less shrill, and the cars come to a stop with less of a jerk.

Looking abroad from the window, your eyes rest on a rich, fat, lazy looking country; gigantic barns with grain and hay protruding from every crevice, and well-fed horses, cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry standing around, apparently enjoying "the situation."

A few miles of this sort of country brings us to York, and a short ride deposits me at the National Hotel, where I sojourned during my visit. It is a good house, with fare plain but substantial. The landlord, though quite young, is Gray; but that is not more singular than that the whitest citizen is Black, one of the largest, Small, and one of the stoutest, Spahr.

A fine court house occupies a space in the centre of the town, the county offices being on the first floor and the court room above. The appearance of the prothonotary's office is rather primitive, it being heated by a large ten plate wood stove, with a huge pile of cord wood, in log cabin style, beside it. Mr. Zeigler, the incumbent, is an obliging and competent officer.

There are no thin men here. Every man you meet shows his good feeding. All are stout, plump and healthy, with an apparent self-sufficient happiness that nothing can ruffle. Their obesity is so well established that in the offices their chairs are all on the broad gauge. I ventured to sit down on a well-worn cushioned chair which had taken the shape of the seat of its usual occupant, but as I could not "spread myself," my position was painful. The same remark will apply to the York ladies. Their strong point is embonpoint. They are generally handsome, but on a large pattern. They dress, too, in fine style, and it is astonishing the amount of dry goods one of those York dames can bear up under.

The horses also are fat and heavy—of the real Conestoga style—and are not much troubled with either hard work or fast traveling. In sleighing they occasionally strike a trot, but never strike it hard enough to hurt it any.

At table, however, you observe the fatness of the land more than elsewhere. There your approach to Turkey is through Greece, (original,) but the beef has no lights, the pork no spare-ribs, and the fowls no merry-thought.

Nearly every body is rich, or at least in comfortable circumstances. That accounts for their corpulence, a poor man being rarely fat. There is not much corporate or partnership wealth in York—it is nearly all individual. In other places speculators get thick together—here each one gets thick by himself. The Bankrupt Law is not in force here, and if a "Little Yorker" wants to become bankrupt he has to betake himself to the mountain or elsewhere.

When Gen. Early was out on a collecting tour for Jeff. Davis he drew on York for $87,000, and his draft was honored on sight. If this had not been done, the probabilities are that there would have been an early fire on a large scale in that "neck of timber." Disloyalty has been charged against the people of York for their action in this matter, yet surely they acted wisely in saving their own property with their own money. They might have got their beautiful town burned down, and then, like some other towns we wot of, have asked aid from the State to build it up again. That would have been a more loyal but less honest course to pursue.

I have already intimated that there is great wealth and but little ostentation in York, and I here repeat it. Modest and unpretending indeed is York as a borough—modest and unpretending are her citizens. Even the irrepressible Austin is quite un-Austin-tatious at York. The population of the place numbers some 11,000, yet she is not a city. While other towns with less of a population and much less wealth have soared up to the magnitude of a city, with a Mayor to preside, York is content to borough along with a Burgess. She knows that a city charter will not make her richer, and she cares not for the empty honor.

The very creek upon which York is located—the Codorus—partakes largely of the nature of the town and its people. It is a sluggish, easy-going stream, always confining its operations to its own channel, never over-running its banks, and abounding in fat sedges and bloated water lillies—a true type of the riches of the land through which it flows.

York is democratic—for the reason perhaps that there are no Welsh there, excepting Henry Welsh, who is a democrat.

Hon. J. S. Black resides here, and his talented son, C. F. Black, Esq., lives on a farm of the Judge, a short distance from town. President Judge Fisher also lives here, and is quite a popular Judge.

I met at tea, at the residence of her son-in-law, the relict of Hon. Walter S. Franklin, at an early day Clerk of the Penna. Senate, and afterwards the successful opponent and successor of Mathew St. Clair Clarke as Clerk of the U. S. Senate. She is the mother of General Wm. B. Franklin, of the army, and of Thomas Franklin, Esq., civil engineer, who is known to many of our people. Though past three score and ten, she is full of vivacity and enjoys society as much as ever. MACSHANE.

AN OLD AND HARDENED CRIMINAL.—David Bates, alias Myers, alias Martin, who is nearly, if not altogether seventy years of age, was taken to the penitentiary, on Saturday last, being sentenced for a term of six years and nine months on a charge of stealing a horse from Henry Wineland, of Unity township, in June last. He was captured in Ebensburg, Cambria county, soon after, and committed to the jail of this county, but his trial was deferred from time to time in consequence of Judge Buffington's inability to hold court. Bates has served at least two-thirds of his life within the walls of various jails and penitentiaries—one sentence alone covering twenty two years—and, when taken to his present quarters in Allegheny city, was at once recognized by the Warden, his wife and family, who seemed glad to see him, from their long and close acquaintanceship, and kindly welcomed him back to their fostering care. He had with him some presents for the Warden's children, and displayed much affection toward them. It is alleged he has thirteen wives, all but two of whom are now living. He is certainly a most incorrigible scoundrel, little fearing either the laws of God or man, having long since attained that degree of depravity which is beyond all means of amendment.—Greensb'g Argus, 17th.

OUR SIXTH TOWN COUNCIL.—An election was held at the Court House, Friday, March 19th, 1830, and the following named officers were elected: Burgess, Moses Canan; Town Council, James Murray, William Davis, David H. Roberts, John Williams, "and Richard Lewis and John Ivory were equal in votes." The record says, "John Ivory appointed by the Court." Rowland Humphrey was made Constable. James Coulter, having erected "hay scales" in the borough, "for the sum of $105, was, on June 25th, presented with an order for that amount, and Richard Lewis was appointed to take care of the same." A list of prices to be charged for weighing hay, etc., was made out, and proposals accepted for "covering and weather boarding hay scales." August 16th, a permit was granted Fogg and Company "to exhibit their circus performances for one day on paying five dollars." August 30th, on motion, it was "resolved that the Treasurer be authorized to borrow, for the use of the borough, from Owen Jones, the sum of $30." Some minor business was transacted, and, March 18th, 1831, the Council smoked the pipe of peace, shook hands all around, and went each to his home, to lie down to pleasant dreams—dreams of a year of official life well spent.—Alleghanian.

MOTHER GOOSE is a tale that can be had at any book store. So cheap made-up Clothing may be bought at cost at S. J. Hess & Co.'s famous Ready-made Clothing Emporium, No. 241 Main street, Johnstown, sign of the flag that has two enormous eyes in it. Look up and look in; then go in, then fit up and look like a man. Hess & Co. will give any man a good bargain who will call, and a present besides.

To the Trade.—I desire to call the attention of the trade to my stock of Lake Fish, having made this branch of business a speciality. My stock, at this time, is the largest ever held in this city. I am prepared to furnish dealers, promptly, by the dray or car load, and have made arrangements for shipping by the car load, at special rates, from Detroit, Sandusky, Huron, Vermillion or Cleveland, and also from Pittsburgh, to any points in Pennsylvania or Ohio, as shippers may wish. I would also call the attention of dealers to my extensive stock and assortment of corn brooms, broom corn and broom material, all of which I can supply at very low rates. JAMES CONNOR,
Wholesale Grocer.
2-4.-5t. No. 355 Liberty street, Pittsburgh.

STILL IN THE FIELD.—John Dougherty, Sr., the veteran tailor and clothier, is still as well prepared as ever to furnish his friends and the public generally with any and all articles in the way of Ready-made Clothing of the very best quality and at the lowest cash rates. His assortment of wearing apparel is made of excellent material and well sewed, and will be sold at remarkably low prices in order to make room for his spring stock. He has also on hand a superb line of excellent Cloth, from which he is prepared to make suits to order, for either men or boys, in the most stylish manner and at the most moderate rates. No fit, no pay. [2-11-tf.]

"THE RIGHT MAN," &c.—C. T. Roberts has been chosen Chief Director of the new fire engine that is to be, but the appointment will not interfere in any way with his chief directorship of the large and fully stocked clock, watch, jewelry, notion and periodical store over which he presides with such grace and dignity. Cham. will run with the machine, of course, but he will nevertheless continue to run his fine establishment on the same liberal principles as heretofore.

A NEW ERA.—A neighboring county paper talks about the sale of heating stoves at reduced prices as being a new era in the history of a certain village down that way; but up here such an event is accepted as a matter of course, although it may be a little on the new era style to say that George Huntley is running out articles of that kind at a reduction on reduced prices that savors very much of giving them away. Now is the time to buy heating stoves.

EPITAPH.—Here lies old Grimes who often times came with his dimes and bought a hat or a collar at Cohen's Hat Parlor, No. 227 Main street, Johnstown, the place to get good bargains, in hats, caps, furs, or furnishing goods, and to get one's money back, too. Just selling at cost to push off the present stock. New goods every day. Old goods do not find a place in the Hat Parlor. They have not time to get old. Now's the time! Do not miss the great bargains!

SHOO FLY!—Listen all ye to the news—and heed it too, if you choose—which our clever young muse wishes now to impart—if you want boots or shoes at prices which beat even Jews, unless money they lose, go right away to Vinore's newly opened mart, and there you will find enough to please your mind, of boots and shoes of every kind, cheap as the cheapest and as good as the best. Cambria House, High street.

DRIED APPLE PIES.—I loathe, abhor, detest, despise, abominate dried apple pies. I like good bread both fresh and sweet, or cakes or pies that's fit to eat; and these to get the plan I take is to buy the flour I want to bake at Mills' store, where the best is always supplied at prices that has ever defied all competition o'er and o'er. For flour, feed and lamps that can't be beat, consult Mills.

COME right along and join in the throng that with shout and with song are going it strong for V. S. Barker's cheapest cash store; for it won't take you long and you'll never go wrong, if you bring money along, and go where best bargains belong, to Valile S. Barker's cheap store. The closing out sales of winter goods at Barker's are affording extraordinary bargains to buyers.

THAT HOLE.—"Why did you build that hole in the fence?" asked the boss. "I didn't build the hole in—I only put the rails around it," was the answer. But John Murphy did make a great hole in his immense stock of dry goods by selling cheap and drawing customers to his popular store in the Mansion House, Johnstown. John Murphy sells dry goods cheap. Call soon.

JUST make up your mind that for treatment that's kind, and for as good as you'll find in the way of dry goods, and so forth, that Andy Christy's the boy that will greet you with joy and his best efforts employ in giving you bargains before you go forth—from his cheap cash store in Loretto, where you can get as much money as any store in the county.

STONEROAD'S CATHARTIC SYRUP, used in all cases instead of PILLS, EPSOM SALTS, CASTOR OIL, &c. Highly flavored. Pleasant to take. Children like it. Price 50 cents. Wholesale, R. E. SELLERS & Co., 45 Wood Street, Pittsburgh. Sold by Lemmon & Murray, Ebensburg, and by Druggists and Country Store-keepers generally. [June 16, 1870.-1y.]

MESSRS GEO P. ROWELL & Co., Advertising Agents, No. 40 Park Row, New York, are authorized to receive advertisements for this paper at our lowest rates.

COMPOUND FLUID

EXTRACT CATAWBA

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, &c. Purely Vegetable, containing no mercury, minerals, or deleterious drugs.

H H

These Pills are the most delightfully pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the FINEST INGREDIENTS. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated, whether arising from imprudence or disease. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated, from the fact that sugar-coated Pills do not dissolve, but pass through the stomach without dissolving, consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated. Price Fifty Cents per Box.

Concentrated Fluid Extract BUCHU.

The Great Diuretic.

has cured every case of DIABETES in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of the Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit, and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption of the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, &c.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five, or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

H B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures All Diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation and Excesses and Imprudence in Life, Impurities of the Blood, &c., superseding Copaiba in affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic affections—in these diseases used in connection with Helmbold's Rose Wash.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uteris, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from indiscretion or habits of dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and midwives for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions, of both sexes and all ages (attended with any of the above diseases or symptoms).

H D

H. T. Helmbold's EXTRACT BUCHU

CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM

Imprudences, Dissipated Habits, &c.,

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, preventing and curing Strictures of the Urethra, allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

Thousands who have been the victims of incompetent persons, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found that they have been deceived, and that the "Poison" has, by the use of "powerful astringents," been dried up in the system, to break out in a more aggravated form, perhaps after Marriage.

Use HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU for all affections and diseases of the Urinary Organs, whether existing in the Male or Female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. Price, One Dollar and Fifty Cents per Bottle.

H L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

IMPROVED ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a Face Wash, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, &c.; dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the Skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action of the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most superlative and congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, safety and efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preserver and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of Syphilitic Nature, and as an Injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extract Buchu, Sarsaparilla, and Catawba Grape Pills, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed. Price, One Dollar per Bottle.

ROSADALIS

THE GREAT AMERICAN HEALTH RESTORER purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:

I take pleasure in recommending your ROSADALIS as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of Scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. M'Fadden, Murfreesboro', Tenn., says: I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benj. Bechtel, of Lima, O., writes: I have suffered for 20 years with an inveterate eruption over my whole body. A short time since I bought a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by LEMMON & MURRAY, Ebensburg, and Druggists generally. Laboratory, 61 Exchange Place, Baltimore. CLEMENTS & CO., April 7, 1870. 1y. Proprietors.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY

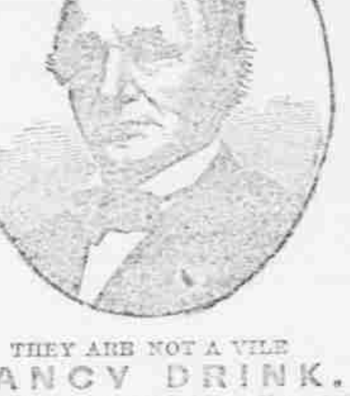
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

Hundreds of Thousands

Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?



FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK.

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

Not Pleasant for Pleasonton.

Don Piatt gives the following scene in Washington life, which explains itself:

The other day General Pleasanton, a delicate, sensitive little gentleman, was dressing for dinner. He had divested himself of every garment except the one spoken of by Hood in that melancholy song called "The Song of the Shirt." He was sailing about under bare poles, when he heard a knock at the door, and supposing it to be his man, who ought to have been there, and was not—he sang out, "Come in!" To his utter consternation that constitutional female known as Mrs. Woodhull, with a peaked hat and a man's overcoat, terminating in unmistakeable crinoline, stalked in. As she did not immediately stalk out, but stood looking at the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in the abstract, the last named gentleman, hiding behind an armchair, stuttered out, "Excuse me, madam!"

"I want to see you on business, General Pleasanton."

"Well, madam, won't you be so good as to come to my office? I am not in a condition to see any one on business just now, and I beg of you to desist and come to the Bureau."

"I don't care anything about your condition, General Pleasanton; but it is a matter of some importance that I wish to see you upon, and this is as good an opportunity as any."

"My God! madam," exclaimed the agonized Commissioner, shifting his hi ancril person from one leg to the other, "won't you permit me to dress for dinner?"

"I have no objection to your dressing for dinner, but what I want to know is, what are you going to do about this Vanderbilt case? That Vanderbilt case is a great outrage, sir, and I can see that somebody is to be swindled out of half a million of dollars," and here followed a statement of the Vanderbilt case, that occupied just twenty minutes by the clock, and was very forcible and emphatic. At the end of it, when the strong minded constitutional Woodhull paused for breath, the Commissioner said:

"I don't know anything about the Vanderbilt case, madam. I have not looked at a single paper. I have not heard anything but what you have told me. I have not had time. My God, I don't get time to put on my breeches. I don't want to be rude, but I wish you would go away and let me dress."

At this moment a knock was heard at the door, and Pleasonton yelled louder than ever he gave command to a battalion, "Come in." The door opened, and the substantial figure and handsome face of our Commodore Alden appeared upon the entrance. So soon as he did this, the Commissioner chassezed from the rear of his arm chair to the back of a sofa, and Alden thinking that he was intruding upon some tender scene between the General and the female, beat a hasty retreat. But the commissioner was not to be forsaken, and he ran to the door, jerked it open, and with the tail end of his linen flying in the wind, seized Commodore Alden, and brought him back, when the man and courageous Woodhull rose in a majestic manner, and wished them a good day. Pleasanton sank exhausted into a chair, and begged Alden for a little brandy, to try and rally from this tremendous attack of woman's rights made upon him.

"With the brief garment of a weak defence
He stood appalled."

A HEROINE'S INTREPIDITY.—On Tuesday night fire was discovered in the four-story building, 183 Fulton street, Brooklyn, the lower part of which was occupied as a fur store by Mr. Julius Weinberg, and the upper part as a dwelling. Mrs. Weinberg was the only person in the store, and the moment the flames burst forth she rang the bell for the servant, Jane Ann Dunne, who was up stairs with four children and Louis Eckstein, a teacher. The flames leaped to the upper part of the building, the only means of escape from which was by a narrow staircase leading to the store. The maid servant, on discovering the fire, seized the two youngest children, and calling upon the other two to follow her, dashed down the stairs to the store. All the children were saved, but the old teacher was very feeble and unable to reach the store. He reached the second story, and there the flames cutting him off, he shouted for assistance. The brave servant, hearing his cries, ran from the store and unmindful of danger, ascended to the second story, where she found the old man, almost suffocated, groping his way toward the staircase. She ran to him, and endeavored to lead him down, but at the head of the stairs which she had but a moment previously ascended the flames fiercely forbade escape. Even then her presence of mind did not forsake her. The heroine took the old man in her arms, and staggered through the dense smoke to the top floor, where Eckstein fainted. Not a moment was to be lost. The brave girl saw that the only avenue of escape was through the scuttle. She was unable to take the old man up the ladder, and to save her own life she left him to his fate, and escaped through the scuttle to the roof. She then called to the firemen below, who ascended their ladder to the fourth story, but the volume of flame and smoke was so dense that they were unable to enter the apartment wherein the old man was lying. The fire having been extinguished they entered the the room and found poor Eckstein at the foot of the ladder, where he had fallen and been burned to a crisp. The remains were conveyed to the York street police station.—N. Y. Sun.

A HEAVY FAMILY.—The Scientific American office was recently visited by an individual who is thus described: His name is Colonel Ruth Goshen, and he resides at present at Algonquin, Ill. He is a native of Turkey, in Asia, and was born among the hills of Palestine. He is the fifteenth, and last child (the baby) of a family of fifteen—ten sons and five daughters—sired by a patriarch now 90 years old living in the valley of Damascus, and by occupation a planter. This venerable sire weighs at the present time, 520 pounds avoirdupois, and his wife, aged 67, weighs 560 pounds. The entire family are living, and not one of them weighs less than 500 pounds. The oldest son weighs 630 pounds, and the youngest, our client, outstripping them all, weighs 650 pounds. Not one of the family is less than seven feet in height, and the colonel is a stripling of only seven feet eight inches in his stockings. He is not an unduly fat man, is merely what would be called moderately portly, and is thirty-three years old. His rank of colonel was given him in the Austrian army.

CURE FOR CANCER.—A Spanish woman recommends the following as a sure cure for cancer: Take an egg and break, pour out the white, retaining the yoke in shell, put in salt and mix with the yoke as long as it will receive it; put a portion of this on to piece of sticking plaster and apply it to the cancer about twice a day.

POPE PIUS IX. has appointed St. Joseph, at the suggestion of all Catholic bishops, the patron saint of the Catholic Church, and the festival of this Saint, which falls on the 19th of March, a festival of the first rank.
